

LOS ALAMOS

White Rock Splash Pad Art

September 18, 2020, 4:10 PM

Contents

|     |                       |   |
|-----|-----------------------|---|
| i.  | Summary of statements | 2 |
| ii. | Individual statements | 3 |

White Rock Splash Pad Art

What do you think of the idea and design of the proposed 3D Wall Maze (see image)?

Summary Of Statements

As of September 18, 2020, 4:10 PM, this forum had:

|                            |    |
|----------------------------|----|
| Attendees:                 | 42 |
| Statements:                | 8  |
| Minutes of Public Comment: | 24 |

Topic Start

September 11, 2020, 8:10 AM

---

White Rock Splash Pad Art

What do you think of the idea and design of the proposed 3D Wall Maze (see image)?

Individual Statements

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 11:22 AM

It makes me nauseous

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 11:27 AM

I think this really interesting. Gives those not "splashing" a fun thing to try. I've not seen anything like this before.

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 12:06 PM

No. Quit wasting our money.

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 12:06 PM

It seems a little too busy, and distractive with the blue and red. Maybe a more calming pattern is needed.

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 2:14 PM

I'm glad to see this project come to life. My thought was that I would prefer a mountain tree green over the bright pink color. But generally, it's a nice design!

---

Name not available

September 11, 2020, 2:26 PM

Interesting idea but it seems like something that is going to collect a lot of dirt and grime and get gross fairly quickly.

---

Kristin Woods

inside CLUBHOUSE - PONDEROSA

September 11, 2020, 4:05 PM

I like the concept - I'd like to be mindful that the maze solution should be at a height appropriate for the target age range of the kiddos visiting the splash pad.

---

Name not available

September 15, 2020, 3:32 PM

Looking at it makes me feel woozy