Flying Folds	Box, Kevin and Dr. Robert J. Lang	Sculpture	A twelve-foot tall powder coated steel origami crane, mounted on one wing-tip. The plaque reads: "This elegant bird in flight is based on one of the most complex origami cranes ever folded from a single, uncut paper square. Using a novel process for creating a mold from paper, the sculpture is cast in stainless steel and powder coated to resemble the original origami figure. Displayed inside the library is the unfolded version that reveals the intricate patterns of design beneath the surface."	White Rock Branch Library	OK	OK
